COMMERCIAL LITIGATION

Norman Hanson DeTroy's business litigation attorneys have extensive experience in a wide variety of disputes involving, for example:

- shareholder and partnership disagreements
- business fraud and employee embezzlement
- lender liability
- noncompetition, confidentiality and non-solicitation agreements
- contract
- commercial real estate
- bankruptcy, and
- other cases that have their origin in business transactions.

We litigate these matters in both state and federal courts before both judges and juries. We are committed to providing responsive legal services while still being sensitive to the cost involved. For that reason, we also bring to the table experience in alternative dispute resolution, including mediation and arbitration, in an effort to provide the most cost-effective and successful outcome for the client.

The business litigation attorneys also draw on the expertise of other attorneys in the firm's Workers' Compensation, Commercial, and General Liability groups when needed. We have extensive experience in counseling clients how to enhance their business productivity while at the same time avoiding conflict and the attendant legal and productivity costs. Of course, we also can tap into years of litigation experience when conflict is unavoidable. Our clients know they can turn to us as advisors, negotiators, advocates, and trial lawyers to strategically, assertively, and creatively get the results they need.
