Norman, Hanson & DeTroy Recognized for Commitment to Employee Benefits

Norman, Hanson & DeTroy is pleased to announce that the firm has been recognized with the 2026 Great Benefits Award from Mployer, recognizing employers that demonstrate a strong commitment to the benefits and well-being of their employees.

At NHD, we believe that taking care of our people is an important part of taking care of our clients. Our attorneys, paralegals, legal assistants, administrative professionals and other team members bring their experience, dedication and expertise to the firm every day. Providing meaningful benefits is one of the ways we show our appreciation for the important role each person plays in our success.

The Great Benefits Award evaluates employer benefits programs across key areas, including medical and ancillary benefits, paid time off and leave and retirement. Mployer analyzes benefit design, cost-sharing and other plan features and compares employers with organizations of similar size, industry and region.

“We’re very proud to receive this recognition,” said Jessica Blanchette, Director of Human Resources. “Our benefits program is one piece of how we support our employees throughout their careers. We want our people to feel valued not only for the work they do, but also as individuals with families, goals and lives outside the office. This award is a wonderful acknowledgement of the importance we place on our employees and their well-being.”

As a Maine law firm with a long history in the community, Norman, Hanson and DeTroy understand that a strong workplace is built over time. Many of our employees spend years building their careers at the firm, and we strive to provide a workplace where people can develop professionally, build meaningful working relationships and feel supported along the way.

“Our firm’s success has always been driven by the people behind the work,” said John Veilleux, Managing Partner. “Investing in our employees is an investment in the future of Norman, Hanson & DeTroy.”
